

Hot-dip galvanized photovoltaic bracket channel

Overview

C-shaped channel steel is a light metal profile with a "C"-shaped cross section. It is rolled from high-quality steel, with parallel flanges on both sides and a stable structure connected in the middle web. There are three main specifications (ASTM A123, A153, and A767) governing the process to apply a protective coating of zinc to steel or iron surfaces. It involves immersing the cleaned and pickled steel in a molten bath of zinc to hot-dip galvanize the surface to improve corrosion resistance. Shipping fee and delivery date to be negotiated.
